

10 Questions Every Art Teacher Should Ask

1. How can I create an art classroom that is driven by important questions rather than known answers?
2. How can my students use Art to make sense of and reinterpret the world?
3. How can I create a student-driven classroom rather than a teacher-driven classroom?
4. How can my students use Art to research something they're curious about in the world?
5. How does the space of my art classroom signal to students it is a place where creative thinking and risk-taking are encouraged?
6. How can I encourage more collaboration among students in my art classroom?
7. How might contemporary art practices be introduced or pushed further in my curriculum?
8. How can we collectively encourage more sharing of ideas and student artwork between schools?
9. How can I help my students become more globally aware through my art curriculum?
10. What do I want students to remember about my teaching 20 years from now?